IN AN OLD-FASHIONED TOWN (1).

There's an old-fashioned house in an old-fashioned street,
In a quiet little old-fashioned town;
There's a street where the cobble stones bruise the feet,
As it straggles up hill and then down;
And, tho' to nod to through the world I must go,
My heart while it beats in my breast,
Will fly to my room, to that old-fashioned home
Will fly back like a bird to its nest.
